

BLAINE ADMITS HE GUESSED AT FACTS

MAN WHO MADE THE CHARGES AGAINST STEPHENSON ON THE WITNESS STAND.

WILL NOTE PROTESTS

New Witnesses Sworn in by The United States Senate Investigating Committee.

Milwaukee, Oct. 10.—State Senator Blaine, who originally made the charges against Senator Stephenson, today admitted practically all the first charges by him against Senator Stephenson were based on hearsay information and that he brought the charges without thorough investigation.

Admits Charge.

"So you were willing to make charges, which, if proven true, might put Stephenson in the penitentiary, without a thorough investigation. You were willing to jeopardize Stephenson on second hand information?" asked Senator Heyburn.

No Time.

"That's true," replied Blaine. "I hadn't the time to investigate. From what I heard, the presumption was that Stephenson was using campaign funds wrongfully."

Opposition Shown.

Blaine said a part of the charges were based on an editorial in a paper opposed to Stephenson.

Tells of Money.

It was brought out that $1,200 of the money Stone received was paid to Davidson, then governor, as "Campaign Fund."

Made Protest.

Blaine's appearance on the witness stand caused a vigorous protest on the part of Attorney Littlefield, Stephenson's counsel, against the receiving of hearsay evidence, were features of the hearing in the Stephenson investigation today.

Not Objections.

The committee ruled that it would not argue questions with counsel but would note all objections and later decide upon them. Blaine's charges were taken up one by one and he gave his basis for each.

New Witnesses.

New witnesses sworn today were W. R. Knell, a former Milwaukee sheriff; C. S. French, and C. S. Waldburgard of Berlin. R. J. Shields of Superior, whose name was called failed to appear.

Wanted Help.

Game Warden Kingsley on the stand today testified that Chief Game Warden Stone wanted him to accept the responsibility for $250 which he had not received.

Laying Plans.

Stone expected he would have in account for certain money received from the Stephenson campaign fund, it was intimated.

LORIMER HEARING IS STARTED TODAY WITH MANY NEW WITNESSES

One Man Testifies That He Heard Clock of Ten Votes Offered For Sale.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Oct. 10.—State Senator Landee of Illinois, testified in the Lorimer hearing today that the late Charles Luke, former state representative, offered for sale a block of ten votes for the United States senator in the 1908 session of the Illinois legislature. On cross examination Landee said he hadn't taken the offer seriously because Luke had been drinking.

The sensational charges that a conspiracy was on foot to drive William Lorimer out of politics in Illinois were made today by Judge Haney, representing the Illinois senator.

In questioning former Assemblyman Landee, who was a Lorimer opponent, Haney demanded to know why he went to the office of Roy O. West, chairman of the state central committee, and Gov. Deneen's campaign manager, and had a conference with Attorney Albert Austin, attorney for State Attorney John L. Wayman, the Chicago Tribune and others hostile to Lorimer.

The senate committee wanted to know what hearing this had on the Lorimer hearing.

"I want to show that a gigantic conspiracy exists to drive Lorimer out of Illinois politics by fair means or foul," said Haney.

"This conspiracy is fostered by the Chicago Tribune, by its editor, Jim Kelly; by its owners, Joseph Medill Patterson, Medill McCormick and others; by Roy O. West, Deneen's campaign manager; and inferentially by Gov. Deneen himself."

Continuing, Haney said: "When the 'prosecution' wants a plausible witness to come here and tell a story that hitherto has not been told, that witness always is forthcoming."

"The Chicago Tribune represents ten million dollars, and other newspapers engaged in this conspiracy continually furnish money and new 'witnesses' to besmirch the character of Lorimer."

LIFE UNDERWRITERS MEETING IN CHICAGO

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Several hundred members of the National Association of Life Underwriters, representing nearly every section of the country, were in attendance when the annual convention of the organization was opened at the Hotel La Salle today. The Mayor of Chicago, Carter Harrison, Harry Wheeler, the president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Jules Girardin, president of the Chicago Association were the principal speakers of the opening session. The convention will last three days and many questions of important bearing upon the life insurance business will be thoroughly discussed by prominent insurance men.

NOTORIOUS YEGGMEN TRIED FOR ROBBERY

Joseph and Jacob Goldberg to Answer Charge of Looting Jewelry Store in Chicago.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 10.—Jacob and Joseph Goldberg, alleged to be leaders of the bold and cleverest band of yeggmens that ever operated in America, were placed on trial here today for the robbery of a jewelry store early in 1910. After the robbery the Goldbergs and a third member of the band were arrested in New York with a quantity of the stolen jewelry. It is said, in their possession. Before the extradition proceedings were concluded the three men were released on bail and promptly fled to Europe. Inspectors of the Massachusetts police trailed the trio over Europe and finally located two of the men in prison in Austria and the third serving a term in Russia. At an expense of thousands of dollars the inspectors waited on the other side until the men were released and then returned with them to Boston. One of the Goldbergs is alleged to be the inventor of the famous "can opener," an exceedingly clever device by means of which the band was able to rip open the backs of the strongest safes with little difficulty.

WALSH'S PARDON IS REPORTED CERTAIN TO BE AFFIRMED

Attorney General, However, Declines to Make Public the Date He Will Be Freed.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—In refusing to make public the announcement of his decision in the Walsh case, the attorney general is merely following the unbroken precedent of the department to maintain secrecy about such matters.

Although official announcement was withheld, it became known that Attorney General Wickersham had approved the recommendation of the Board of Pardon that John R. Walsh, the Chicago banker, be paroled from Leavenworth penitentiary.

Walsh made his formal application when the board of pardon of the department of justice made its annual visit to Leavenworth last week.

The board acted favorably on the application and its recommendation was presented to Wickersham yesterday by Supt. Laddow. The actual date of Walsh's release was withheld.

Family Notified.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Richard Walsh, son of John R. Walsh, paroled banker, was the first member of the family to be notified over the telephone today that his father had been paroled.

"Thank God," he cried, "I must first tell my mother." Later he said, "I am overjoyed by the news of my father's parole and mother is so happy she can hardly give expression to her thoughts."

MISSISSIPPI RISES OWING TO FLOODS OF TRIBUTARIES

Citizens of La Crosse Raising Funds to Help Rebuild Black River Falls.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 10.—The Mississippi river here is slowly rising yet from the enormous flood waters from the northward which have been pouring in for the past week. It is not believed the stream will become dangerous.

RAIL COMMISSIONERS CONVENTION OPENED

Importance and Number of Topics Up For Discussion Will Make Five Day Session Necessary.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—So many important topics are slated for discussion at the twenty-third annual meeting of the National Association of Railway Commissioners, which began here today, that the sessions will continue five days instead of three as heretofore. The convention is composed of the members of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the railway commissioners of the various states. The president is H. Hudson Durr, of Florida.

The present meeting promises to be of much importance, especially in view of the great question of whether the States have the power to regulate interstate rates raised by the Judge Sanborn decision. The commissioners also will discuss railway capitalization, car service, demurrage, telephone and telegraph rates, express service and express rates, and shippers' claim on common carriers.

DID STOLYPIN MEET DEATH BY SECRET SECTION ORDERS?

Rumored That Russian Premier Wanted to Know Too Much About Where Funds Went.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

St. Petersburg, Russia, Oct. 10.—That Premier Stolypin was assassinated as a result of his discovery of enormous graft in the secret police department is strongly indicated by evidence brought out during the investigation of the murder. On the eve of his death Stolypin asked General Kourloff, chief of the secret police, to account for $450,000 which his department received and for which no account had been rendered.

ITALIANS OCCUPIED TRIPOLI WITH ARMY

FIRST REVERSES TO ARMS OF ROME CAME ON THE SEA.

THE TRANSPORTS SAIL

Turkey Plans to Drive All Italians Out of Its Country and Consecrate Property.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 10.—An official dispatch from Naples states that twenty transports have sailed from that port for Myrcina, where they will be joined by the second division of the Tripoli expedition.

The Turkish torpedo boats which have been reported from every point in the Mediterranean have been discovered looting off Sicily prepared to send the Italian transports to the bottom.

It is believed here that the landing of the Italian troops in Tripoli will bring the war to a conclusion as far as Turkey is concerned and peace will be declared very shortly.

However, massacres of Italians are feared in Turkey. Disquieting news also comes from the Balkans.

First Reverses.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—The Italians have suffered their first reverse since the war began according to news received here from across the frontier. A body of Italian marines who started inland from Tripoli encountered an overwhelming force of Turkish and Arabs and were driven back to the city.

They were pursued almost to the gates of the town where the attacking force was driven back in turn by the guns of the fleet seven miles away.

Fifty Transports.

Malta, Oct. 10.—It is reported here today that forty thousand Italian troops left Ogosta, Sicily, for Tripoli last night on fifty transports.

Retailers Measure.

Constantinople, Oct. 10.—The cabinet council has decided to close all Italian industrial, financial and educational establishments in Turkey and to seize all Italian steamers.

First Force.

Rome, Oct. 10.—The first Italian expeditionary force of infantry, artillery and engineers, landed at Zoukri, Tripoli today. The greater part of the Italian army expedition is now on its way to Tripoli.

Another Report.

London, Eng., Oct. 10.—An unconfirmed report received here today says two Italian cruisers have been sunk by mines off Benghazi and that two Italian destroyers have met a similar fate.

IOWA FAVORS HAVING PRESIDENTIAL VOTE

Twenty-Seven Counties on the List Already Heard From Like the Plan.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 10.—A presidential primary in Iowa was favored by the majority of the republican leaders and editors, according to the poll being conducted by the legislator and leader of this city.

Twenty seven counties in the state have been heard from today and in these the sentiment was overwhelmingly in favor of the plan of holding the presidential election at the annual time delegates to a national convention are selected. Senator Cummins expressed himself as very much pleased with the result.

HALL & HUEBEL

WEATHER FORECAST MONTH OF OCTOBER

Many Various Phenomenon Forecasted to Occur During Month of October.

Last bulletin in gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent Oct.
16 to 20, warm wave 16 to 19, cool wave 18 to 22. This will be the most severe disturbance of the month.
Temperatures will go unusually high as the storm center approaches and the great fall in temperatures following will bring a cold wave in northern sections and carry frosts far down toward the cotton belt. But probabili-ties are that cotton will not be injured. The sun will be eclipsed on Oct. 21 but the eclipse will not be visible on this continent. It will be visible in small sections of eastern Asia and the East Indies.

During the five days of Oct. 21 will be central day a tropical hurricane will probably originate to the eastward of the Caribbean Sea. That hurricane and the continental cold wave will be result of the same cause and their movements will be related to each other. During the five days mentioned above conditions will be favorable to earthquakes in some places where they sometimes occur.
From Oct. 15 to 21 larger than usual sunspots are expected. From Oct. 15 to 23 the various disturbances mentioned are expected to be of a character that will tend to demonstrate the truth of planetary meteorology and will suggest that our government and other governments are losing time and wasting money by neglecting this theory and expending large sums for investigating other and false theories.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about Oct. 21, cross Pacific by slope of 22, great central valleys 23 to 25, eastern sections 26.
Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Oct. 21, great central valleys 23, eastern sections 25. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Oct. 24, great central valleys 26, eastern sections 28.

While this disturbance is west of us it will be dominated by the great forces mentioned in preceding paragraphs and all its weather features will be at greatest intensities in western sections. The hurricane mentioned is, at the same time, expected in the Caribbean or Mexican Seas.
Another front wave will cross the continent immediately following the last mentioned cold wave.

The weather of October is expected to continue favorable to winter grain west of meridian 85 but east of that line many sections will be too dry. Cotton crop weather is expected to continue favorable to growth in top cotton. Beginning very persistently advised that the cotton crop would be good while oats, hay, corn, potatoes, would fall short. This one great success in long range forecasting should convert the doubters.

The authorities have ruled against the U. S. weather bureau and the latter is prevented from extending its work in the recording and study of earthquakes. This is all wrong. There is surely a relation between the causes of weather changes and the causes of earthquakes and Congress should appropriate ample funds to be used by the weather bureau for that purpose. The U. S. weather bureau is exceedingly well prepared for recording earthquakes and such records are not only necessary in order to study and forecast earthquakes but such records will be valuable in working out weather problems. That institution is long on scientists but short on philosophers. It can make good records but does not know what to do with them.
Philosophers must use those records in working out the weather and other great problems. We can know the future only by the past.

ENJOYABLE AUTUMN DANCE LAST NIGHT

Rock County Telephone Girls Entertained in Most Successful Manner at Annual Event.

What was pronounced the most successful dancing party ever given by the Rock County Telephone girls was enjoyed by one hundred and fifty-five complex at Assembly hall last evening. The event was the annual autumn ball given by the Central Girls the last waltz was played at one o'clock this morning.

The hall was beautifully decorated with white festoons of hunting, intermingled with autumn leaves and greens, and the walls were hung with cork and maple boughs, whose foliage had been tinted red and gold by the frosts. On a platform partially hidden by palms, Hatch's orchestra dispensed most delightful selections from the recent comic operas for the waltzes and two-steps and graciously responded to many encores.

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of the following:
Misses Jessie Porter, Agnes Cornman,
Jessie Dudley, Agnes Elliott, Miss Hubcock and Helen McCarthy, and to their persistent efforts the success of the affair is largely due. They were ably assisted in various matters by Jack Gazelle.

GETTING WINTER WOOD SUPPLY IN

Men at the Northwestern Yards Busy Unloading the Winter Supply of Wood.

Laborers at the yards of the Chicago and North Western have been busily engaged the past week in unloading and piling the winter wood supply which will be used in firing locomotives. The crew at the work of unloading state that there will be a total of fourteen cars unloaded thus far and in the fourteen cars there are 190 cords. This wood is what people outside of the railway atmosphere call "kindling" and is received in bunches instead of each stick being separate.

The pile at the yards is now assuming large proportions and at the rate it has been received during the past week, will make the yards look like a saw-mill.

SPORTS

BOWLING SEASON OPENED LAST NIGHT

Maroons and Browns Play Three Games at Alleys Last Night. Maroons Won.

The first games of the season took place at the alleys of Loringwood and Houghton, and were between the Maroons and the Browns. The games were watched with great interest by the followers of the sport and were closely contested. The Maroons were successful in winning two of the three games played.

Wolcott, captain of the Browns, was unable to participate in the game last night and Substitue Falso took his place.

The next games will be played to night and will be between the Blues and the Greys, and are full of promise of being very interesting. Below is the scores of the games played last night.

NEITHER TEAM WON IN SUNDAY'S GAME

Janesville Pirates and Beloit All-Stars Played Tie Game on Latta's Ground.

Playing with a dash and vigor worthy of the professionals, the Janesville Pirates and Beloit All-Stars backed each other to a nine inning tie game with the score of 5 to 5 on the Beloit diamond Sunday afternoon. The game was fought determinedly by both sides and the advantage was not evident with either team, although the Janesville players were somewhat heavier with the stick than their opponents. It was necessary to end the game at the end of the ninth inning to give the field over for a football game. The tie will be played off in this city next Sunday. The box score:

INTEREST SHOWN IN THE CHICAGO GAMES

Local Fans Really More Interested in Cub-Box Series Than in Result of World's Championship.

Local baseball fans, the real game "bugs," who watch the score boards at the places supplied by The Gazette for every bit of baseball news, are more interested in the result of the Cub-Box series which will start Friday in Chicago, than in the world's championship contest between Philadelphia and New York.

Perhaps it is due to the fact that the "fans" here are for the most part Cub followers, with a fair sprinkling of American League devotees. It is safe to say, however, that the enthusiasts will keep their eyes closely glued to The Gazette's score board during the two big series, as the reports will be received from the Associated Press run by run, play by play, during the entire series and posted as soon as received.

For the Chicago series the schedule, list of eligible players, umpires, and other data concerning the games between the Chicago Nationals and Chicago Americans which will start on Friday were announced today by the National baseball commission as follows:

Umpires--Henry O'Day, National League; Frank O'Laughlin, American League. Commission representatives--Leslie Conatus and C. G. Williams. Eligible Players.

Chicago Americans--Hugh Duffy, manager; Baker, Benz, Blackburne, Black, Bodie, Callahan, Chouhard, Collins, Corhan, Dougherty, Hovik, Krietz, Lange, Lord, McConnell, McIntyre, Morrill, Messenger, Mullen.

WANT OPPORTUNITY TO ADDRESS BOARD

State Highway Commission Ask if They May Send Representative to Speak at November Meeting.

It is the desire of the state highway commission as expressed in a letter today to the county clerk to have a representative address the county board at the November meeting. It is the purpose of the commission to present their plans more fully to the county boards throughout the state, and to explain the exact methods of procedure with reference to the recent state aid law. It is probable that it will be arranged to give the commission's speaker, the time for a brief address.

Among other suggestions which the commission has made in their effort to secure good roads in the state, is a plan to have the county bond themselves for an amount which would allow for the building of a larger amount of new roads at once. This would involve numerous difficulties, however, and it is considered that this plan, however advisable, would not be practical.

The exact amount of the money which will be expended in Rock County for highways according to the new state aid law, is not fully determined, owing to the fact that some of the towns have merely given their figures with the privilege of acting on the matter at the coming spring election. With this the case it is impossible to give the total amount of the appropriation from this county.

It is estimated by the highway commission from the reports of the clerks which have been sent in, that there will be some $1,200,000 spent in the state next year for roads and bridges under the new law. This work will be done in 66 of the 71 counties in the state, only six counties having failed to make any provision for state aid work.

STRENUOUS WORK AT CAMP RANDALL

Coach Richards of University Making Team Work--Play Ripon College Saturday.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 10.--Two days after their strenuous battle with the Lawrence college the Wisconsin players were feeling the need to begin to over again. Not an injury was inflicted on any player, but all were more or less sore and susceptible to much crowding at the hands of Trainer Bernstein. All day Sunday "bernie" worked over the players and his massage was effective in quickly removing aches and pains.

The whole squad went through the paces Monday afternoon with undiminished vim, a vigorous workout being followed by a scrimmage with the freshmen. Moll guided the Javelinas and Gillette took Moll's place as quarter on the first team.

Coach Richards is receiving the cordial cooperation of students, players and assistant coaches and is rapidly erasing a large share of infection and respect. Trainer Bernstein said: "I have never worked with a finer coach than Richards."

MORE HORSES WILL COMPETE IN RACES ON COLUMBUS DAY

Evansville and Edgerton Horsemen Wire For Admittance For Their Fast Ones.

Instead of being a simple race meet between Beloit and Janesville horses, the Columbus Day races at the Park Association track, has now developed into a county affair with entries from "Edgerton," Evansville, Janesville and Beloit. It is also possible that some of the fast horses owned in and about Clinton will be entered. Secretary Putnam received a telephone message this morning asking that three fast horses from Edgerton be allowed to enter, and after dinner came a message from Evansville stating that George Thorman's fast horse, Mac American, would also be here. The track is unusually fast just now and good sport is assured.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

"KEEPING UP WITH LIZZIE." In his new book, "Keeping Up With Lizzie," Irving Bacheller has put his finger on the national weakness, which in a word is-- Extravagance. To tell the story of the young girl who comes home from a fashionable boarding school and by her extravagant ways ruins not only her own family, but a lot of the neighbors.

Lizzie must have this and that--furnishings, service, servants, dress--all on a scale of lavishness hitherto unknown. In order to "keep up with Lizzie" the neighbor girls must have as much, and the community is almost bankrupt.

Keeping up with Lizzie! That is the name of the well to do people of our day. Each one vies with his neighbor in prodigality of expenditure, and the merry race while it lasts is to the swift.

Keeping up with Lizzie. Lizzie's folks buy an automobile, and the children and often the wife say to the struggling head of the family, "Why, if Lizzie's folks can have an auto I don't see why we can't have one."

And mortgages are filed on homes and money is borrowed and capital is absorbed in the purchase and costly maintenance of the machines. Mr. Bacheller says the automobile craze is--

"The joyful death march of a race." Of course no part of this profuse spending of money is indulged in by the toiling millions, who can never hope to afford expensive follies. They cannot, if they would, attempt the feat of--

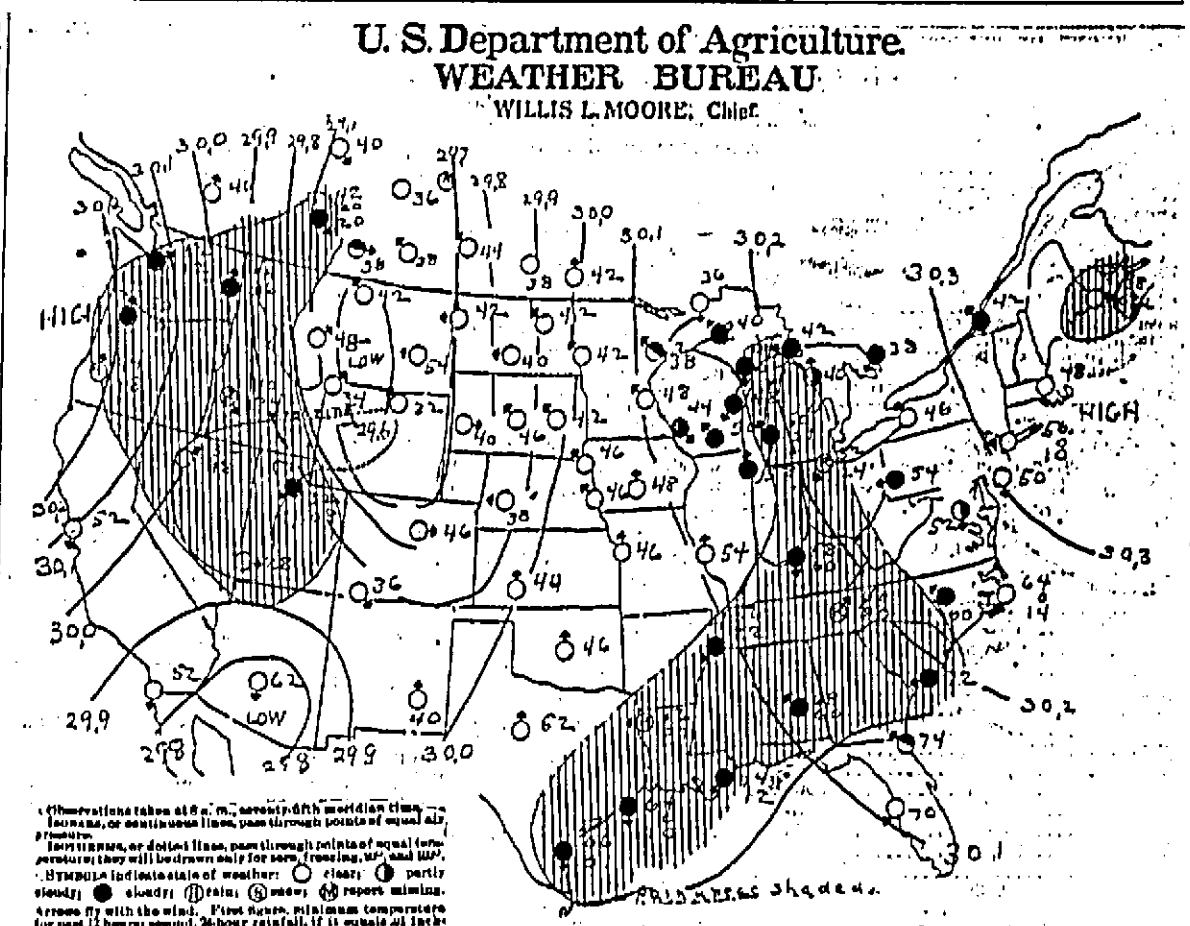

Keeping up with Lizzie. But with us all what the neighbors do and what the neighbors spend have altogether too much effect upon what we do and spend.

It is interesting to note what Mr. Bacheller believes to be the way out of our maze of extravagance. He finds that the professions are literally crowded to the death. Business is overdone. What then?

"Back to the land." Society must quit its feverish race for display supremacy, and more people must go to the land, do scientific farming and live the simple life.

Will they do? "It is bound to be by the great law of must," says Mr. Bacheller. If so, if our era of wasteful expenditure must give way to the producing instead of the consuming of wealth, then the "keeping up with Lizzie" epoch may not have been in vain.

FREE ADVERTISING.

"Between an active city official and the State Tax Commission, the Bower City is receiving much publicity and not a dollar demanded for printers' ink. That it pays to advertise, is not a debatable question, but in this case there is some uncertainty about the amount of value, as well as to who will be benefited. The following editorial is from Public Service Magazine for October. It was written before the city decided to have a re-assessment, and therefore only partially covers the ground.

"The citizens of Janesville, Wis., are just recovering from a political campaign, which though ostensibly successful from the politician's standpoint, has left the taxpayers facing an increase in their rates where a decrease had been promised. As usual in such campaigns one of the local public service corporations, the water company, was picked out to be the 'horrible example'.

"The cry was raised that the water company was exacting exorbitant rates for service. The city was being robbed. The taxpayers were being robbed. Everybody who drank water was being robbed, and of course the owners of the water company, since they were charged with doing the robbing, were depicted as growing sleek and fat.

"Some of the newspapers took up the fight against the company and finally complaint was made to the commission for an examination of the corporation affairs. It was predicted that it would be shown that the rates of the company were excessive and that a reduction that would be felt by all, would be forced by the commission.

"Finally, after the commission's experts had gone over every piece of the company's property and heard testimony, it took the matter under advisement. Then came the decision. The commission held that the city was receiving its water at rates too low to be fair to the company, and that it should hereafter pay the company something like $10,000 a year more for its supply. The reduction to the consumer was so slight as not to be felt."

HIGH COST OF MONEY.

"If labor was what a man paid for money it would be cheap at the price. As it is, money is our highest priced commodity and it is only just to Mr. Aldrich to say that the tariff is not to blame; free trade money costs just as much. One really never knows when he starts out to get money how much it is going to cost him.

"Money is a greater drain on a man's income and resources than an automobile. Whether it costs more to get money than to keep it after you have it no one has ever been able to figure out, but it is generally believed that the dearest way to get money is to have it given to you.

"The high cost of money comes under three heads: the things you have to give up while you are making it, the fine things you have forgot how to do by the time you get it, and the unpleasant things you must do after you have it. And you pay double if you try to get it and fail. A quick way to ascertain the total cost of money is to compare it with what is left in the world and missing from yourself after you get it."—Lila.

"Easy money" is the kind of money that the most of us are looking for, and yet, if the thought expressed by the writer in "Lila" is true, the "easy money" costs more than any other. People who inherit wealth are often envied, but inherited wealth usually destroys ambition, and the loss of ambition is a sacrifice beyond the power of money to compute. Self-made men are not inheritors of fortune.

"The first question asked about a man after his life-work is closed is, 'How much did he leave?' If money was the principal asset, he didn't leave enough to perpetuate his memory very long. The things which endure, and make for the world's advancement along right lines are character and all the graces which enter into its building. If money was necessary to the work the world would be short on character.

A NATION OF THRIFF.

"While America has come to be known as a nation of spenders, and her citizens as an easy mark for all sorts of investments, France continues to lead the world as a nation of thrift. A writer in the North American Review has this to offer:

"France leads the world in the annual comparative volume of her savings, which amount to about $100,000,000. Italy, with a population considerably smaller, exceeds her in the amount of average savings-bank accounts per depositor and nearly equals her in the amount of average deposits per inhabitant, while Germany, Austria, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, and Denmark lead her heavily in the same way. But in actual producing capacity, irrespective of the disposition of the resultant savings, France leads all other countries and constitutes the best example of modern times of what thrift as a national characteristic can accomplish for both the nation and the individual citizen. It is estimated by careful economists and financiers that nearly $500,000,000 becomes available every year in France for investment, about $100,000,000 from actual savings out of the profits of human labor."

"The prosperity of a nation depends upon individual property, and thrift and economy, backed by ambition, are the elements which contribute largely to success. The French people are impulsive, and more or less erratic, but they have a bank account and a financial interest in the republic. The voting population of France represents something because of individual property interests.

"Hampton's Magazine of muck-raking fame has come to grief and the small stockholders scattered all over the country, will be obliged to seek consolation elsewhere. The consolidation with the Columbian proved disastrous and unless funds are soon secured the statement is made that the November number will not be issued. The country can spare a few more of this class of publications without loss.

"About the only satisfaction thus far resulting from the Stephenson investigation is that the money was spent and 'nobody saw it as it went.' If the lid was removed the fact would be disclosed that a liberal slice of 'Uncle Ike's' fortune has been invested in the same way. It was all right to help his friends, but all wrong to help himself.

"Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is the special subject of prayer, just now, in many churches. The old gentleman is between the brewers and a large constituency which proposes to keep him in the straight and narrow path. It is beginning to dawn upon his mind that rye and barley are more than staple foods, and that occasionally they contribute freely to the cup that cheers and sometimes inebriates.

"The new assessment board is on the ground and every effort should be made to aid in the work. The question of what is just and equitable should be settled for all time to come and that is really not an alarming question.

STATE PRESS COMMENT.

"Safeguards Needed. The breaking of the dam at Austin, Pa., and the present flood at Black River Falls, Wis., should be sufficient in itself to show the necessity for regular inspection and strengthening of the immense structures which hold back millions of gallons of water and which when weakened are a menace to life and property.

"What They Bought. With thirty thousand or so going for beer and cigars, Wisconsin was not a very dry state during the notable primary election campaign of 'Uncle Isaac.' Perhaps Messrs. Cook, Hutton and McGovern bought buttermilk.

A Great Correspondent.

"Marquette Eagle-Star: The passing of Wm. E. Curtis, the correspondent, takes away one of the most interesting of newspaper men. Mr. Curtis' strength lay in his reliability and in the plain and direct manner in which he told his story. His death will be a great loss to the paper which he served.

"Manual on the Job. Milwaukee Sentinel: Gaby Deady announced when she arrived in America that she had no use for a king without a throne. Wonder if that has anything to do with Manuel's efforts to 'come back'?"

"On a Supposition. The tax commission as now organized seems to be out for every dollar that can be squeezed out of the people. The city of Janesville is to be hauled over the coals—re-assessed by outsiders to see if anything has escaped lynx-eyed local assessors. And what for? It is suspected that people or corporations are not paying on their full valuation. A mere supposition, is enough to get the expert machinery of the commission at work and the city must eventually put up for the reassessment.

"Of Lesser Import. Madison Democrat: Also a less important objection to the primary law is that it has a tendency to force a faithful public servant and candidate for reelection to neglect the public business while he vigorously prosecutes two campaigns a season, instead of one.

THE FURRY MEN.

Copyright, 1911, by C. N. Mather.

Of all the horses that roam the earth we try to dodge when we're we can.

The champion of the entire breed; that pest, the furry man.

He simply dots on housework and he is so thick and so neat, a speck of dust upon the wall makes him cry for his complete. He never fails to get out every morning at the break of dawn. Armed with a broom with which he sweeps the dust and dirt from off his lawn.

A cobweb makes him shudder and a misplaced chair just drives him mad. He never sweats or smokes or chews, plays cards or does a thing that's bad.

He picks out all of his wife's gowns and tells her how to have them made. And he is most particular about the cut and fit and shade.

He loves to fuss around with plants and is an expert in point lace. A raveling upon his coat is nothing short of a disgrace.

He doted on Mr. Edward Bok and Margaret Sangster and that ilk. And he can tell, just by the feel, the shoddy from the best of silk.

He lingers around the kitchen and he passes out expert advice. On how to cook and how to serve and how to do the thing up nice.

He writes a small and perfect hand. Spellerian in every way. Immaculate in his attire, he wears a new shirt every day.

His manhandling is immense. He spends a lot of time at that. When he goes out he spends a half an hour in trying on his hat. No microphone ever gets to him. He knows their fiend and germs with him can have no part.

Trot and try to show us if you can. One who has got a thing upon that tireless pest, the furry man.

A VERY HANDY MACHINE.

One of our anonymous friends has sent in the prospectus of a new machine that he has just invented. He calls it "the most ingenious contrivance ever sprung upon an unsuspecting public."

"It is the simple twist of the wrist," according to the gentleman's claim, "it can be converted into any one of the following useful articles: Jackplane, monkey wrench, stove lifter, glass cutter, screw saw, safety razor, butter knife, bottle washer, button hook, cherry picker, weather vane, paint brush, gas lighter, ice tongs, belt buckle, horse clipper, lunch basket, handkerchief, milk can, corker, vacuum cleaner, currycomb, hoofjack, carpet stretcher, nutcracker, potato masher, screwdriver, meat chopper, rolling pin, neck hammer, electric bell, flatiron, can opener, key ring, fountain pen, pipe cleaner, padlock, shoe last, music rack, flower pot, egg beater, cold chisel, kitchen strainer, fish scaler, oil can, paper weight, rat trap, and clear clipper, and the very presence in the house wards off flies, rats, mice and other vermin, including bill collectors and book agents."

"If this machine will do all that is claimed for it our anonymous correspondent has his fortune made. No home could possibly be without it, as it will apparently do everything that secures a divorce. If the man who sent in the prospectus will kindly forward his name, we will be glad to recommend him to the Ananias club forthwith.

THAT PROUD MOMENT.

How his bosom swells with pride; How he sighs in deep relief. How he feels a happy thrill That is most beyond relief. How he struts across the floor. How he poses like a king. How he looks with lofty air Upon every living thing. How he laughs and shakes in glee. How he almost chokes with joy. When the nurse comes down the hall And she whispers: 'It's a boy.'

ACCORDING TO UNCLE ABNER.

There is only one poorer way to make money than by running a barber shop in a cemetery and that is to put your coin up again some other fellow's experience in the gold mine business. Miss Pansy Perkins of our village has wrote a poem which will surely be accepted and published by one of the high-brow magazines because nobody who has read it knows what it is about and she doesn't know herself. When Lem Higgins was down to New York he went into a store to get some ladies' hose and the clerk said:

"Are they for your wife or do you want something more expensive?"

Higher education will get a boost when it gets so there is as much money in teacher's school as there is in driving a hack but that time will never come. The fellows around our village believe that Ethel Prindle is in love. He is getting so he wears a collar and necktie weekdays.

Now think of our town lost his job as light comedian of an opy company. He took on fifteen pounds and is too heavy now.

Of course there are arguments for and against the celluloid collar, but the fact remains that the fellows who wear 'em seldom get higher than congressmen.

Some men are born foolish while others marry grass widows with nine children.

Lem Doakes and family have begun to save up for a Thanksgiving turkey. They have almost $17 in nickels and pennies already and hope to have the required amount in a month or two.

Grabba Hibbins says he kin remember back to the time when plush parlor furniture was all the go, but it doesn't seem as though any fellow could be as old as that.

A fellow stopped at Lem Doak's house the other day and said: 'I have heard a new talking machine that never runs down and I am introducing it.' Lem said: 'Stranger, if you'll just step in the house, I'll introduce to you old talking machine that don't never run down either. She has just got home from the south circle.'

It boasts all how many self-made men are ridin' around in automobiles and how many college graduates are peddlin' books on foot these days.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO ASSAULT CHARGE

George Thompson Denies Abusing His Children—Trial Is Set For Thursday.

George Thompson, the Johnstown farmer charged with cruelty to his children, pleaded not guilty in the municipal court this afternoon to a formal complaint of assault and battery upon his little son, Addison Wilkins. His trial was set for Thursday morning and in default of $200 bail will await his trial in jail.

Thompson told the court that he had not treated any of his children harshly. He admitted that he had struck his twelve-year-old daughter with a stick but denied that he had used undue severity. He could not account for the presence of the scars and black and blue marks found on her body. She had, he said, the two nights in the cornfield out of pure weakness and because she did not want to obey her mother. Thompson's wife and family will be subpoenaed as witnesses.

James C. Dahlman, "Cowboy" Mayor of Omaha, "Throws the Lariat."

Mayor Jas. C. Dahlman is of an interesting and picturesque personality. Starting his career as a cowboy, he is at present Mayor of Omaha, and has the following record to his credit: Sheriff of Dawes County, Neb., three terms; Mayor of Chadron, two terms; Democratic Nat'l Committeeman, eight years; Mayor of Omaha, six years and in 1910 Candidate for Governor of Nebraska. Writing to Polity & Co., Chicago, he says: "I have taken Foley Kidney pills and they have given me a great deal of relief so I cheerfully recommend them."

STATE SYNOD OPENED IN THIS CITY TODAY

OVER TWO HUNDRED PRESBYTERIAN DELEGATES AT OPENING SESSION OF WISCONSIN SYNOD.

PROGRAM OF MORNING

Pre-Synodical Program Given This Morning in Interest of Sunday School Work—Interesting Meetings Promised.

About two hundred delegates from the Presbyterian churches of the state were present this afternoon at the opening of the annual Wisconsin Synod of the Presbyterian church, whose sessions will be held in the First Presbyterian church of this city through tomorrow and Thursday.

The opening of the regular sessions of the synod was held this afternoon at half past three, and was opened by the annual sermon by the retiring moderator, Rev. Samuel N. Wilson of Reedsburg, on the theme, "The Attitude That Wins." Following the address the sacrament of the Lord's supper was observed, the moderator presiding, and assisted by Rev. Hugh Lowry Moore of Beloit and Rev. James Ouellet of Milwaukee. The organization of the synod was the work for the remainder of the afternoon including the election of officers and the report of the committee on arrangements.

Session This Morning.

What is termed on the program of the synod as the pre-synodical meeting was held in the church auditorium this morning beginning at ten o'clock. The program was devoted in the main to the work of the Sunday schools of the church and the value which was according from this department of church work. The first speaker this morning was Rev. H. S. Donaldson of Milwaukee, who treated the topic of "Church Workers in the Making." His address was very interesting and treated of the manner in which the children and young people should be treated in the church in order to insure their active aid after they had attained more advanced years.

Prof. Samuel H. Day of Carroll College, with the subject, "The Distinctive Educational Value in Religion," created the matter of religious education in a very comprehensive manner. He stated that it made little difference whether religion was considered as the vitalizing element in education or whether education was the foundation and underlying element of religion, education without religion is not worth while, and each are inseparably related to each other. The speaker reviewed a number of the ideas of education which were held by numerous authorities throughout the country, ranging from the ideal of acquisition to mental discipline and the ideal of social efficiency. He brought out, however, that education was not complete without religious instruction which was needed by the child as soon as it could comprehend. The whole idea of education, he said, and purpose if it fails to supply the elements of religious and spiritual knowledge.

Rev. Wilson's Address.

Rev. H. N. Wilson, pastor of the Central church at St. Paul, Minn., gave a most eloquent address on "Religion and the Twentieth Century Home." Rev. Wilson stated at the outset that there are no two words in the human language of greater import than those, Christ, and the Home. They embody all that can be attained in right living and have been proven to be the center of the best modes of thought and action.

In most cleverly expressed phrases the speaker told of the value which the home was to us and made plain the fact that its beauty was owed to Christ. Until his advent the ideal of the Greek and Roman had been citizenship. But Christ by his mode of living, his deeds and his actions, demonstrated the value and privity of the home and its meaning to human life.

The speaker pointed out the things which the home should stand for following the example of the home of Joseph and Mary, and indicated that the home was the only proper place for religious education. Not that the Sunday school and instruction in the public schools was not commendable, but unless it was supplemented by the encouraging culture and refinement of the parents in the child's home, it was of little value. It would be considered as merely a garment which was to be put on once a week.

The responsibility of the parents in this respect was great and remained for them to give Christian training to ensure the correct living of their offspring without which their lives would never be capable of the fullest attainment.

Following the session this morning the fellowship banquet was held in the dining room of the church and was attended by over a hundred visiting ministers and delegates.

At the meeting this evening the address will be given by Dr. Shaler Matthews of the University of Chicago on the topic, "Church Activities." The Wednesday's program will be as follows:

BODY OF MAN FOUND ON N. W. TRACKS AT CLINTON JUNCTION

Unknown Man Killed By Train While Stealing a Ride Two Miles This Side of Clinton.

Early this morning the body of an unknown man was found on the track about two miles this side of Clinton Junction by the crew of the Chicago and North Western train which leaves here at 5:40 in the morning. The body was badly crushed and from its condition has evidently been run over by several trains before it was found. Members of the crew carried the corpse to the Clinton depot and the officials here were notified.

District Attorney Danwidie appointed Deputy Sheriff Hughes and Dr. Thomas to investigate the cause of the man's death and they made an immediate examination of the remains. Deputy Hughes could find no one who had seen the man in the community and he was a perfect stranger in this part of the country. The investigation showed that in all probability the man had come to his death while stealing a ride on a train.

He was a man about thirty-two years of age and was evidently a tramp on his way south, but on account of the condition in which the body was found it was impossible to identify him. A razor and a few small articles, safety pins and nails, were found in his pockets, but nothing by which his identity could be traced.

TELLS OF TERRIBLE FLOOD DISASTER AT BLACK RIVER FALLS

REBECCA DARNALL, FORMER RESIDENT OF JANEVILLE, WAS EYE-WITNESS OF RECENT CALAMITY.

DESTRUCTION OF CITY

In Letter to Gazette Gives An Accurate Account of Wreaking Away of Entire City—Business District Entirely Gone.

In a letter to The Gazette, Rebecca Darnall, a former resident of this city, now living at Black River Falls, gives a most graphic description of the disaster which visited that city last week, absolutely obliterating the business and part of the residence sections of the city.

Miss Darnall gives a complete account of the entire calamity, from last Friday morning when the first apprehension was felt, to Saturday evening, when the flood had partially subsided. The loss of property is estimated by the residents of the stricken city to be $1,750,000, and many of the residents, once well-to-do, are left without a possession in the world. The state troops are in command of the city, and are looking out to protect the residents. Miss Darnall writes very clearly of the terrible disaster as follows:

Editor Janesville Gazette:

When I arrived in Black River Falls a few days ago, Black River, which usually slips along quietly over its rocky bed, past huge granite boulders, and over the dam and rapids below, was considerably swollen by the late rains, but gave no cause for alarm. It was only a magnificent spectacle, the continuous rainfall, however, for several days, brought the river considerably above the high water mark, but caused no great apprehension until Friday at 10:30 a. m., when reports came that the dam, some fifteen miles above the city, had given away. This reservoir contained an immense volume of water and great fears were at once aroused concerning the safety of the city. In a short time another report came stating that the dam had given away. This dam held a lake from three to three and one-half miles wide and six miles long. In order to save their power house on the west end of the dam was blown out. This action led the immense, uncontrollable flood upon the city of Black River Falls, filling the river bed to within ten feet of the railroad bridge, which is forty feet above the water.

It quickly submerged the electric light plant and washed around the west end of the dam, carrying away hundreds of feet of the river bank and buildings upon it, a large three-story car terminal, blacksmith shop and wagon bridge across the mouth of town creek being the first to go. Other buildings quickly followed.

The river bank, being sand, and thoroughly soaked by previous rains, crumbled like ashes and gave way till all the buildings nearly a hundred feet above the river bed, were carried away, including the Lutheran church and several residences. The first span of the river bridge and all the buildings on the east side of Water street disappeared in a short time. Among these was John Best's meat market, a fine, new, modern building, a large warehouse filled with machinery, and several other buildings.

The greater portion of Senator McGillevray's manufacturing plant also went and in rapid succession the buildings on the west side of the street, the large dry goods and grocery store of the Jones Lumber and Mercantile company, the grocery of the Black River Falls Lumber and Mercantile company, Freeman hotel, the best in the city, Miss Guy Vincent's millinery store, Johnson's gentlemen's furnishings store, and the printing office of the Jackson County Journal.

The water had risen so rapidly very little was saved from these buildings. Water street was a raging torrent, and the water reached the entire length of the business portion of Main street, following buildings, but it was hoped they would not be carried away. It was a vain hope.

One after another they fell, crash after crash, all day long, and till late into the night till not a building was left on the north or south side, for over two blocks, and everything along the river bank, two blocks south, was also carried away.

Those losses included the First National bank, Jackson County bank, two hardware stores, two of the best dry goods stores, three groceries, Ed. Leichen's shoe store, Miss Harmon's millinery, Henry Gohardt's fine new residence building, The Falls House, two livery stables, and two lumber yards, besides many other buildings and several residences along the bank. Every place in the third ward, located along the lower portion of the bank, not carried away, was flooded more or less, and people who did not actually lose their homes were driven out, with what little they could secure of their household goods and clothing. Some have only the clothing they wore.

The water has continued its destruction and many buildings not actually carried away are not safe for occupancy. Some hang perilously on the verge of the banks, liable to fall any moment.

To give an idea of the extent of the damage, buildings one hundred and fifty feet from the shore are undermined; the bank for nearly a quarter of a mile in the city limits is washed away; and the river is now running two blocks farther west than it formerly did.

When the alarm was first given merchants hastened to their business places and prepared for high water, but they could not conceive the disaster about to fall upon them, so practically nothing on Water street was saved. Others fared a little better and parts of the stock was saved from the Main street stores. The homeless are being cared for by the more fortunate and relief in the way of food and clothing is being received.

The scene beggars description; the devastation and destruction is beyond imagination and must be seen to be realized. Every business house is swept away or damaged so there is not one left and not only the building and goods but the ground is gone, so if the town is ever rebuilt it must be upon an entirely different site.

To add to the distress and already overburdened community, looters are abroad and the stricken city is now under military surveillance. Electric lights, telephone and city water are all cut off and the food supply is exhausted. Several cities have sent aid to respond to help the needy or suffer from any cause and is deserving of aid and comfort from every source. One Chicago paper reports the dam gave out because poorly constructed, which is the cause of the great loss, and only a few houses have been lost. This is entirely false. Between 65 and 70 buildings are entirely gone, not counting barns and many common buildings, and the loss, by conservative men, is estimated as not being less than $1,750,000.

Later—LONG distance telephone communication has been established and city water is now secured. The postoffice is doing business in the town house and a relief station has been established in the city hall. The fine concrete dam the city built at such an expense to supply power for the electric light plant, also recently rebuilt and improved by adding expensive machinery for day current, is being blown out as I write, hoping to turn the water into its original channel.

The river has greatly receded but is still washing badly in some localities. The dam now being blown out has stood firmly and has required blast of dynamite to make an opening. Reports are not exaggerated regarding loss of property and the wants or needs of the stricken city. Men who have lost all their lives are today without a dollar. Some own their homes; others have not even a home. The only relief to the community is the fact that no lives were lost. Many excretion trains were run yesterday and hundreds of people came to view the ruins from cities north and south of us.

Atlanta Peace Monument Unveiled.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 10.—An everlasting memorial of bronze and marble was unveiled here today as the crowning feature of a three days' celebration to commemorate the famous Northern peace tour of the old-Gate City Guard of Atlanta directly after the close of the "reconstruction period."

The unveiling ceremony was made the occasion for a grand parade in which famous military and patriotic organizations of a dozen of the Eastern and Southern States participated.

Governor Baldwin of Connecticut, representing the North and Gov. Smith of Georgia, representing the South, shared the honor of dedicating the memorial. Short addresses were delivered also by Mayor Haysburn of Philadelphia, Mayor Preston of Baltimore and Mayor Smith of Hartford, Conn.

The monument occupies a commanding position at one of the entrances of Piedmont Park. It consists of a bronze group, designed by Allen G. Newman of New York, surmounting a large granite pedestal. The group is of heroic size, representing Peace preventing a member of the Gate City Guard from shooting.

SKIN A MASS OF FIRE

Horrible torture—pain unendurable—days when the whole body seems to be burning up—long nights of sleepless agony—

Then—Instant relief—the skin cooled and refreshed—all burning and itching gone!

Thousands testify to this—thousands who suffered from Eczema, Pimples and other skin troubles, until they heard of that simple, cooling wash of wintergreen, thymol and other ingredients known as D. D. D. prescription.

J. Samuel Lewis of St. Paul, Minn., writes: "I used three bottles of D. D. D. Prescription, and now my skin, once a mass of fire and irritation, is as smooth and as soft as a child's."

A 25¢ trial bottle will give you positive proof.

I am so certain of what D. D. D. will do for you that I offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee:—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent. Call here and talk it over.

WERE WEDDED TODAY AT MILTON JUNCTION

William Kimmerling and Miss Evelyn Osborn, Both of Janesville, Took Nuptial Vows This Afternoon.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milton Junction, Oct. 10.—Miss Evelyn Osborn and William Kimmerling of Janesville were united in marriage at half past three o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Osborn, of this place. Rev. Starkweather, formerly pastor of the M. E. church here, now of Little Falls, New York, read the marriage ceremony.

The bride was attired in a handsome gown of white marquisette under white Irish crochet, and was attended by Miss Vera Lyntz, who was attired in a gown of the same material under pink lace. Percy Jamieson of Janesville was best man.

Following the ceremony a four-course wedding dinner was served at five o'clock to the marriage party, after which Mr. and Mrs. Kimmerling left for a short wedding journey, after which they will be at home at 614 South Main street, Janesville, where they have a furnished home in readiness for their arrival.

Both the young people have many friends in this place as well as in Janesville where the bride has been employed for some time past in the bookwork store and where the groom has a position with the American Express company.

Among those from away who were present at the wedding today, were: Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lee of Mineral Point; Mr. and Mrs. F. Beggs of Fort Atkinson; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Munn, Miss Vera Lyntz, and Louis Tanner of Janesville; and Mrs. Starkweather of Little Falls, N. Y.

HOLME'S

The Store for YOU

OF IMPORTANCE TO INFANTS AND THEIR MOTHERS

Every mother at some time has purchased lime water. Very few know anything about its quality. Lime water is one of the cheapest things sold in a drug store. Generally little care is taken to prepare or take care of it. The ordinary way of making it is to obtain a chunk of lime, throw it into a large jar filled with water, shake occasionally, and sell the clear liquid. The little babies are entitled to better thought. Lime water is a valuable infant's remedy for indigestion, sour stomach and as a food with milk and milk sugar. Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares lime water by adding chemically pure calcium oxide in the exact proportion to sterilized water. It is then stored in clean glass bottles. You will always find it full strength, not contaminated by dust and dirt as lime in a lumber yard is found to be. It is those things that make the difference in good drugs and the best drugs. Chemically pure lime water, 16¢ a pint. Highest purity sugar milk 25¢ a pound. Eagle condensed milk, 3 cans 50¢. Your baby should have the advantage of our good lime water and other drugs—Hladger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets, The Drug Store that makes a specialty of Drugs.

Havoc Wrought by Beast Creation.

Even in thickly peopled communities man has not yet subdued the beast creation. In India last year wild animals and poisonous serpents killed 25,000 persons. The number of cattle killed by the denizens of the jungle was 93,000. The natives, in turn, slew something over 100,000 elephants, tigers, leopards, bears, wolves, hyenas and other animals, including 81,000 snakes.

The Opportunity of the Age is in the Stanley Country, "The Clover Belt" of Wisconsin

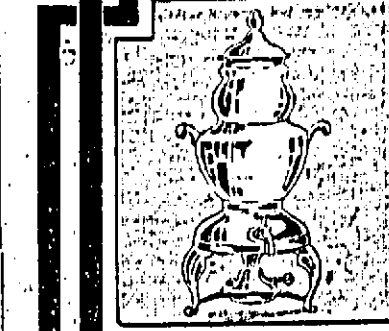

The towering Pine, Birch, Maple and Elm are not more indigenous to Northern Wisconsin than is the dairy cow, and the rich industry for which she stands sponsor, and which has already produced greater wealth to the state than the forests have ever produced. The dairy industry finds a congenial setting here, because of ideal conditions in soil and climate. The indispensable prerequisites of a successful dairy country are, abundant feed, pure air and pure water, with few extremes of temperature. The north central portion of the state presents these conditions in an unusual combination of perfection. Woven in with these conditions is the location of the lands which we are interested in. This land is only 128 miles from St. Paul, 138 miles from Minneapolis, and 133 miles from Duluth and West Superior, which four cities alone give the farmer a short haul market where about one-half of million people purchase their supplies.

Can you find a better country in which to locate? Markets at your door, good roads, schools, churches, R. P. D. routes, neighbors, no frontier and best of land, no crop failures and all at prices ranging from $12.50 to $20.00 per acre, easy terms. Investigate our proposition at once.

THE THEATERS

PAUL EVERTON AND GERTRUDE DALLAS IN "THE GAMBLERS," MYERS THEATRE, TUESDAY, OCT. 24.

The beautiful pastoral play, "In Pol-Turvy Hotel," under the management of E. E. Hico. For that management this season will be the attraction at the Myers Theatre Saturday, Oct. 14, matinee and night. This offering will be one of the best of the kind that will be presented here this season. There is not a dull line in the play; it is made up of the proper kind of material that was created to make people happy. It is not a word problem play, the kind that makes one feel blue, but a piece which has a morbid plot, full of bright sayings and bubbling over with delightful humor, the kind that Cal Stewart has made the world laugh when he talked through the phonograph. Mr. Stewart is a comedian of rare distinction and his company of players are artists in their respective lines.

Cal Stewart "In the Flesh." Local theatregoers will be given an opportunity to see and hear Cal Stewart, the man who has made millions laugh with his "Uncle Josh" stories on the phonograph. Mr. Stewart will appear at Myers Theatre in "In Politics," a new play that has been written especially for him, and surrounded by a metropolitan cast of sixteen people of well known ability. As "Uncle Josh"

CAL STEWART AS BOB GRANGER in "POLITICS," Myers Theatre, Saturday, Oct. 14, Matinee and Evening.

Mr. Stewart's voice has become well known throughout the world by means of the phonograph, but this is the first opportunity that the admirers of his Yankee stories have had to see him in the flesh. As "Bob Granger," one of the leading citizens and builders of Grangerville, Ill., he is a lovable old chap with a wealth of Yankee humor that bubbles over at the least provocation. During the course of the play he becomes one of the contestants in a fiercely contested town election which closes with one of the most tense situations ever produced by modern playwrights.

Frank Smithson, who staged "The Girl I Love" was a comedian in English musical entertainments and holiday pantomime before he turned his attention to producing. His last playing was done in the first place which he staged on his side of the water, "The Girl from Paris," put forth in 1895 by E. E. Hico. Since then he has been constantly employed as a stage manager and director. "The Girl from Paris" was followed by such forgotten affairs as "Monte Carlo" and "Topsy"

FIRST CONCERT OF THE APOLLO CLUB MOST SUCCESSFUL

Music Lovers Enjoy the Rare Treat Offered Them by the Appearance of Talented Musicians.

An audience which filled the hall attended the first concert of the present season last night given by The Apollo Club. The program was a work of art both in rendition and composition. All selections were well chosen and given in a very pleasing manner. Sibyl Samuels-McBarnid, Leon Marx and Mary E. Oberdorfer are artists of national reputation and are well known to musicians in this part of the country as performers of high standing in musical circles.

Mrs. Sibyl Samuels-McBarnid, the dramatic soprano, was greeted with rounds of applause and encored again and again throughout the evening but responded with bows alone to the applause. Her strong, rich voice held the entire audience spellbound and its flexibility and range enabled her to make even the uneducated music lover realize that something extra was on the program. Although the selections from German classics were received with unbounded enthusiasm for their beauty of expression it was the well known songs sung in English which brought forth the loudest applause from the audience.

Leon Marx is one of the finest and best known artists within miles of Chicago. The ease with which he played the most difficult pieces was deeply appreciated by the lovers of music in the audience and the variety of his music made his performance even more pleasing. It was evident to those people who listened to Mr. Marx that he put his whole soul and heart into the strains which came from his violin. His every movement seemed to show that he was entirely oblivious to the audience and was listening to his instrument. Leon Marx will be long remembered by Janesville musicians as an artist of great ability.

Solo work of any kind is often greatly aided by skillful accompaniment and much depends upon the accompanist for the success of the piece. Marx Oberdorfer is an artist of reputation in this line as well as being a soloist of remarkable power himself. Throughout the entire program his ability as pianist was shown in this way and a great deal of the success of the evening was due to Mr. Oberdorfer.

Of the pieces rendered by him one was of his own composition and was received with hearty applause by the entire audience. His expression was admirable and the most difficult selections were given with a perfection which held those with hearing fairly spellbound for several seconds after he had finished.

In short, the entire program was a credit to The Apollo Club as well as to the artists themselves and if this is a forerunner of future "concerts," Janesville people have a great deal to store for them.

At present the club has between seven and eight hundred dollars to its credit which will be drawn on this winter to enable them to secure the best and most accomplished talent in the country. The next musicale will be given by Mauda Powell who is considered by some to be the best lady violinist in the world. Janesville people will fully appreciate the opportunity of joining The Apollo Club this season if the first two numbers are to be a standard of the rest.

PIONEER OF COUNTY. PASSED AWAY TODAY

Daniel Silverthorn Who Had Lived in State Since 1848 Died at Footville Home This Morning.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Footville, Oct. 10.—Daniel Silverthorn, one of the oldest residents of the county, having resided here since 1848, when he came West from New Jersey, passed away at his home here this morning. The deceased had only passed his ninety-first birthday on Friday last, and until his last illness had been hearty and hale for a person of so advanced years. His serious illness was of about a month's duration, a he was stricken with paralysis during the early part of September. Since then he has been confined to his bed and much of the time, especially in the days preceding his death, he has been unconscious. The end had been expected for several days and eight of his ten children were at his bedside at the last.

Mr. Silverthorn was born Oct. 6, 1821, in Warren County, New Jersey. He remained at his childhood home until his marriage in 1841 to Miss Martha Houston, when he came to Wisconsin, and where he has since resided. His wife passed away January 21, 1894. Mr. Silverthorn was the father of eleven children, ten of whom are living.

The deceased was widely known throughout this section of the country where he had many friends among the older residents. Being one of the oldest citizens he had witnessed the growth of this section for nearly sixty-five years. Until his last illness he had taken an active interest in all current events and enjoyed conversing with his friends and neighbors.

The funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at half-past one o'clock from the Christian church, Rev. E. J. Anderson officiating. Interment will be in the Grove cemetery, Monday and Thursday. A full line of children's hats. "Slipson's."

Spanish City's Vehicle Tax.

Valencia, Spain, farms out its vehicle tax for a fixed sum per annum to a concessionary, who is allowed to collect under the terms of his contract a sum amounting to about $34.50 for each automobile, plus about $1.00 extra for each seat the car contains. Practically all the machines are kept for only city and park driving.

You Get Value for Every Cent When You Buy a FAVORITE

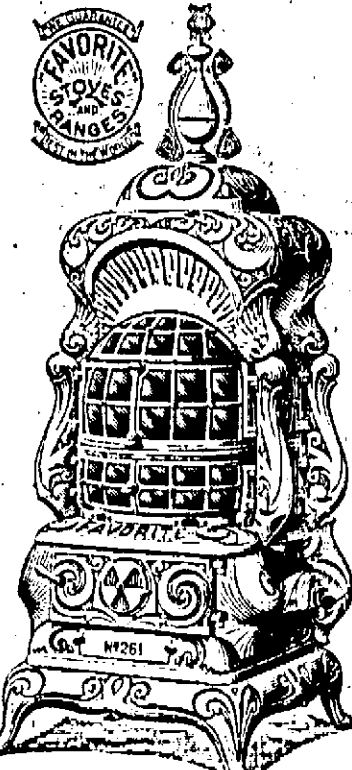

You get perfection in every detail.

For instance, what you want in a fire pot is depth and the right shape. The Favorite fire pot is deeper and larger at the bottom in corresponding sizes than those in any other stoves. This insures perfect combustion. Moreover, it's made of the best iron and will last for years and years.

The grates operate smoothly on rollers to clear the ashes from the edges. A child can easily shake it. The wide duplex jaws allows no unburned particles to accumulate.

The magazine is of extra large capacity. When the swinging top is opened the magazine cover raises automatically. It responds perfectly and requires no strength because of the close joint between the cover and the swinging top.

No attention is required to maintain the temperature of the room. The stove regulates this. It is perfectly constructed. The drafts are scientifically placed. All doors, registers and men frames are made to fit tight by special machinery which is found only in the Favorite Plant.

NEVER ANY INDIGESTION, DYSPERSIA OR SICK, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH

Your out-of-order Stomach feels fine five minutes after taking a little Diaprepain.

Take your sour out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of the Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Papa's Diaprepain and let you eat one 23-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak; there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, "nausea," heartburn, griping

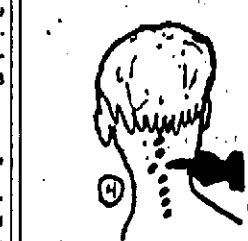

In bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is feeble and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diaprepain.

Eye and Ear Troubles — AND — Chiropactic

Eye and ear troubles are the cause in a great many instances of young and middle aged people being handicapped, were it not for the defective eyes or ears they would in a great many cases be able and capable of filling some position far superior to the one he or she now holds.

If either of the above mentioned organs are not working as they should it's because there is a lack of nerve force going to these parts. One of the vertebrae is pressing on the soft nerve that passes through the opening between each bone. We, as CHIROPRACTORS, remove this obstruction. Your diseased condition then leaves.

EASTERN PRODUCTS APPEAR ON MARKET

Sweet Potatoes, Apples and Oysters Being Shipped in From Eastern States—Potatoes Again Quit.

New York apples are just beginning to come into the local markets in barrels and are of excellent quality. Thus far in the season the apple crop has been home grown entirely and very few of any kind has been shipped in from outside the state.

Quinces are also just beginning to appear in quantities, being offered now in barrels for canning at reasonable prices.

Oysters from the Connecticut packers have made their appearance within the last few days and are arriving in increasing quantities. These are mostly in bulk and are shipped in small packing cases.

Sweet potatoes are coming in in earnest and the quantity of the shipments is daily growing. Home grown sweet potatoes have been of very good quality though the supply has been rather small, and many people are glad to see them come in barrels.

Irish potatoes have gone down to from 50 to 65 cents a bushel which is glad tidings indeed and news that will appeal to a great many people.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson

Formally Opens Second Annual

Exhibition in Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 10.—The International Dairy Show, the second of its kind held in this city was opened today at the big Auditorium in a formal manner by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. The exhibition, which will continue until Wednesday of next week, is far the greatest and most important ever held in the West.

More than one thousand head of cattle, representing nearly every known breed, are exhibited on this occasion and practically every section of the United States, as well as

Canada and several countries of Europe and of South America have contributed to this big and instructive exhibition. Among the most interesting features are model plants of dairies, butter and cheese factories, etc., all under the strict supervision of government experts selected by the Department of Agriculture. Among the prize animals exhibited are some of the most famous milk cows of the world, among them Pauline Wayne, the pride of the White House stables.

M'NAMARA'S TRIAL

methods, the confession of Orle E. McManis, alleging that an organized band of labor leaders made a business of destroying the lives and property of those antagonistic to the labor union, and the active and generous support given by the American Federation of Labor and other unions and labor organizations in aid of the accused men, have led the popular imagination and led the public to believe that the trial will result in startling disclosures.

The specific charge upon which the trial will proceed is covered by indictment number 6,316, relating to the death of J. Wesley Reeves, an employee of the Times at the time the building was destroyed. The eighteen other indictments will be set over pending the trial for the alleged murder of Reeves, who was private secretary to the general manager of the Times.

The lines of battle planned by J. Clarence Barrow, chief counsel for the defense, and District Attorney John D. Fredericks, who will conduct the prosecution, already have been pretty clearly revealed. The prosecution will first seek to establish that the Times building was destroyed by an explosion of dynamite. They will come the testimony of witnesses who will swear that they know J. B. McNamara as J. B. Bryon in Los Angeles and in San Francisco during September and October of last year. An endeavor will be made to trace the accused almost to the Times building, where the explosion occurred. The case against J. J. McNamara will be furnished by McNamara and books found in McNamara's office and the clocks and wire found in Indianapolis. In this matter Detective William J. Burns will be called as a witness.

The defense will attack the allegation that the building was destroyed by dynamite, will assert that the explosion was caused by gas and will call experts. In attacking the McNamara confession the defense will call witnesses to establish an alibi for the McNamara brothers. In every instance where the McNamara's are identified by McNamara at a certain time and place the defense is expected to call witnesses to show that the men were in other localities. Experts on handwriting will be called to prove that letters alleged to have been written by J. J. McNamara were not written by him, but were written by some person who attempted to simulate the writing of the much leader.

Unless all signs go astray the trial will occupy many weeks. The defense alone will subpoena three hundred witnesses. These will come from all parts of the United States, about one hundred and fifty of them from San Francisco and vicinity. District Attorney Fredericks estimates that the prosecution will summon a similar number, bringing the total up to seven hundred. The cost of service of these witnesses and the expense of bringing them to Los Angeles, probably will make the trial the most expensive that the country has ever known. Mr. Barrow estimates the probable expense of the defense at $400,000, while it is believed it will cost the prosecution not less than $500,000.

Full soon the campaign presidential will fill the land with grief and tears; the same old statesmen influential will push but air into our ears. The same old roborants soon will frolic from here to yonder, as of yore; and orators with mental colic will stand on their hind legs and rant. The same expensive gullivants of candidates in private cars; the same old shuffling, pawing, railing, the same old fierce Black Hand cigars. The same men must hold the sack while Windy Jim, with animation their lubberly ride to Troy and back. I'd like to change the condition so we will have this feast of tears, this Jim-Jam wave of election, but once in ten or twenty years. Beneath the present day conditions our country gets a frequent shock; we hand it to the politicians, who use it for a chopping block.

NOTES FOR CITY FARMERS ONLY.

By H. L. RANN.

What has become of the old-fashioned father who used to come into the parlor at 9:00 p. m., when his daughter was entertaining a gentleman friend, take a key out of his pocket and wind a hunting case watch, fasten the numbers on the inside and clamp down the windows and complete his preparations for bed by putting out the cat? The father who had the nerve to hang on after witnessing this performance usually figured on breaking into the family to the accompaniment of "O Promise Me."

If there were more such farmers nowadays there would be less free-for-all if there were more such fathers now, spooning around the premises. At the present writing a girl is considered a rank failure unless she has six or seven on water-eyed youths loitering around her, filling the portieres full of cigarette smoke and singing rag-time with the nasal resonance of a fish peddler. The father who knows where his daughter is nights and what kind of company she keeps will never read the headlines of a recent scandal with a quaking backbone. You will notice, also, that when a young man with the brains of a licensed plumber makes up his mind to get married, he doesn't pick out the girl who changed partners in the front parlor so fast that she can't remember their last names. Leave it to a watchful community to keep tabs on the boy-struck girl, if the parents don't.

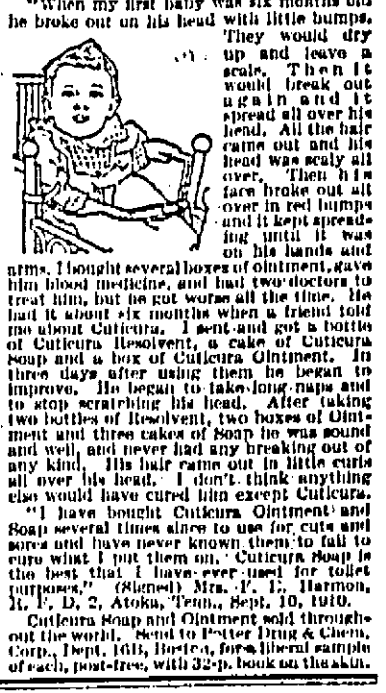

We are asked if the old-fashioned wool wrinkle, with blue and yellow stripes are now considered essential to full dress. We regret to state that they have given way to the graceful cotton glove, which makes a man's wrists look like the drumsticks of a broad hen. The man who can retain his savoir faire in a rented spiketail and a pair of gloves whose growth was stunted in early youth will never have to apologize to anybody for pouring coffee into the saucer and straining it cautiously through an overhanging mustache.

The Girl from His Town

The drawing woman nodded. "Miss Lane thought she would be able to see you today."

The picture in his hand, Dan gazed at it rapturously.

"I'm from Blaintown, Montana, where she came from."

"So she told me, sir."

He laid the picture back on the table, and Miss Lane understood that he wanted Miss Lane to give it to him herself. She led him affably to the door and affably smiled upon him. She had a frill in her hand, a thimble on her finger, and a lot of needles in her bodice. She looked motherly and useful. Blair liked to think of her with Letty Lane. He put his hand in his pocket, but she saw his gesture and reproved him quietly: "No, no, sir, please, I never do. I am just as much obliged, and her face remained so affable that Blair was not embarrassed by her refusal. His parting words were:

"Now, you make her take care of herself."

And to please him, as she opened the door, she pleasantly assured him that she would do her very best.

Dan went out of the Savoy feeling that he had left something of himself behind him in the motley room of an actress with its perfumed atmosphere of roses and violets. The photograph which he had laid down on the table seemed to look out at him again, and he repeated delightedly, "That one was for me, all right! I'm the 'boy from her town' and no mistake." And he thought of her as she had lain, lifelessly and pale on the dressing-room sofa, under the touch of hired hands, and how, no doubt, she had been lying in her room when he called today, with shades drawn, resting before the long hard evening, when London would be amused by her, delighted by her, charmed by her voice, by her body and her grace. He had wandered up as far as Piccadilly, went into a florist's and stood before the flowers. Her sitting-room had been full of roses, but Dan chose something else that had caught his eye from the window—a huge country basket of primroses, smelling of the earth and the spring. He sent them with his card and wrote on it, "To the Girl from My Town," and sent the gift with a pleasure as young and as fresh as was his own heart.

He got no note of acknowledgment from his flowers. Miss Lane was evidently better and played every night; no mention was made of her indisposition in the papers. But Dan couldn't go to the Gaiety or bear to see her make the effort which he knew must tire her beyond words to conceive.

After a few days he called at the Savoy to get news of her. He got as far as the lift when going up in it he saw Prince Pontotowsky. The slight affected Miss Lane's townsman so forcibly that instead of going up to the dancer's apartment Dan took himself off, and anger, displeasure and something like disgust were the only sentiments he carried away from the Savoy. He went her no flowers, and gave himself up unreservedly to Joshua Ruggles and to a couple of men who came in to see him by appointment. And when toward four o'clock he found himself alone with Ruggles, Dan threw himself down in a big chair and looked intensely bored.

"Well, I guess we don't need to see any more of these fellows for a week, Dan," Ruggles yawned with relief. "I'm blamed if it isn't as hard to take care of money as to get it. I was a poor man once, and so was your father. Those were the days we had fun."

Ruggles took out a big cigar, struck a match sharply, and when he had lit his Henry Clay he fixed his gaze on the flying London fog, whose black curtain drew itself across their window.

"There's a lot of excitement," Ruggles said, "in not knowing who's going to get; many turn out to thing when you're young and on the trail. That's the way your father and me felt. And when we started out on the spot that's blighted on the map today, your father had forty dollars a week to engineer a busted mine and to pull the company into shape."

Dan knew the story of his father's rise by heart, but he listened.

"He took on with the mine a lot of discontented half-hearted rascals—

—a whole bunch who had failed all along the line. He didn't chuck 'em out. There's no life in old wood, Josh," he said to me, "but sometimes there's a fire in it, and I'm going to light up, and he did. He won over the whole lot of them in eighteen months, and within two years he had that darned mine paying dividends. Meanwhile something came his way and he took it."

From his chair Dan asked: "You mean the Bentley claim?"

"Measles," his friend said conitely, with a grin. "Your father was sick to death with them. When he was sitting up for the first time, peeling in his room, there was a fellow, an Englishman, a total stranger, come in to see him. 'Better clear out of here,' your father says to him. 'I'm shedding the damndest disease for a grown man that ever was caught! I'm not afraid of it, the Englishman said, 'I'm shedding worse.' When me and the woman I marry, all right, though." Dan did not pursue his subject further, for his feelings about the duchess were too unreal to give him the sincere heartiness with which he would have liked to answer Ruggles.

He went over to the window, and with his hands in his pockets, stood looking out at the fog. Ruggles, at the table, opened the cover of the book of "Mandulay" and took out the four checks made out to Lady Gaiety and which he had forgotten. He hurriedly thrust them into his pocket.

"Come away, Danite," he said cheerfully, "let's do something wild. I feel up to do most anything with this miserable fog down on me. If it had any nerve it would take some form or shape, so a man could choke it back."

Ruggles blew his nose violently.

"There's nothing to do," said Dan in a bored tone.

"Why don't you see who your telegram is from?" Ruggles asked. It proved to be a suggestion from Gordon Gaiety that Dan should meet him at five o'clock at the club.

"What will you do, Ruggles?"

"Sleep," said the Westerner serenely. "I'm nearly as happy in London as I am in Philadelphia. It's four o'clock now and I can't sleep more than four hours anyway. Let's have a real wild time, Danite."

Dan looked at him doubtfully, but Ruggles' eyes were keen.

"What kind of a time do you mean?"

"Let's ask the Gaiety girl for dinner—for supper after the theater."

"Letty Lane? She wouldn't go."

"Why not?"

"She is awfully delicate; it is all she can do to keep her contracts."

He knows that, Ruggles thought. "Let's ask her and see." He went over to the table and drew out the paper. "Come on and write and ask her to go out with us to supper."

"See here, Ruggles, what's this for?"

Dan was puzzled as he sat down to the table, reflecting that it was perfectly possible that old Ruggles had fallen a prey to the charms of an actress. She wouldn't come, of course. He wrote a formal invitation without thinking very much of what he said or how, folded and addressed his note, and wrote: "What do you say?" Ruggles asked eagerly.

"Why, that two boys from home wanted to give her a supper."

"Well, perhaps I better go now, your customer has been waiting quite a while."

"I do not," responded Dan rather brutally. "She's got others to take her out to supper, you bet your life."

"Well, there's none of them as rich as you are, I reckon, Dan."

And the boy turned on him violently.

"See here, Josh, if you speak to me again of my money, when there's a woman in the question—"

He did not finish his threat, but snatched up his coat and hat and gloves and went out of the door, slamming it after him.

Mr. Ruggles' profound and happy snore was cut short by the page boy, who fetched in a note, with the Savoy stamping on the back. Ruggles opened it but without emotion.

"Dear boy," it ran, "I haven't yet thanked you for the primroses; they were perfectly sweet. There is not one of them in any of my rooms, and I'll tell you why tonight. I am crazy to accept for supper—here she had evidently struck out her intended refusal, and closed with, 'I'm coming, but don't come after me at the Gaiety, please. I'll meet you at the Carlton after the theater. Who's the other boy? L. L.'"

The "other boy" read the note with much difficulty, for it was badly written. "He'll have to stop sending her flowers and going every night to the theater unless he wants a row with the duchess," he said dryly. And with a certain interest in his role, Ruggles rang for the head waiter, and with the man's help ordered his first midnight supper for an actress.

Ruggles, in answer to this, said: "Why, that reminds me of what a man remarked about your father once. It was the same English chap your father bought the claim of. Speaking of Blair, he said to me: 'You know there's all kinds of metal bars, and when you cut into them some is bullion, and some's coated with aluminum, and there's others that when you cut down, cut a clean yellow all along the line.' If, as you say, you feel like a hunk of metal, it ain't bad if it's that kind."

"It's got to stop coming in between me and the woman I marry, all right, though." Dan did not pursue his subject further, for his feelings about the duchess were too unreal to give him the sincere heartiness with which he would have liked to answer Ruggles.

He went over to the window, and with his hands in his pockets, stood looking out at the fog. Ruggles, at the table, opened the cover of the book of "Mandulay" and took out the four checks made out to Lady Gaiety and which he had forgotten. He hurriedly thrust them into his pocket.

"Well, there's none of them as rich as you are, I reckon, Dan."

And the boy turned on him violently.

Ruggles agreed. He left his reminiscences abruptly. "Your dad and me had the fun in our time; now you are going to get the other kind; you're going to make the dust fly that he dug up."

And the rich young man said musingly: "I'll bet it isn't half as good at my end."

And Ruggles agreed: "Not by a jugful." And followed: "What's on tonight?" "Mandulay?"

Dan's fury at Prince Pontotowsky came back. "I guess you thought I was a little loose in the lid, didn't you, Josh, going so often to the same play?"

"You wouldn't have been the first rich man that had the same disease," Ruggles answered.

"There is nothing the matter with 'Mandulay,' but I'm not gone on any actress living, Josh; you are in the wrong pew."

Dan altered his indolent pose and sat forward. "But I am thinking of getting married," he said.

"I hope it's to the right girl, Dan."

And with young assurance Blair answered: "It will be if I marry her. I know what I want all right."

"I hope she knows what she wants, Dan."

"How do you mean?"

"You or your money. You have the damndest handicap, my boy!"

Blair flushed. "I'll get to hate the whole thing," he said ferociously. "It meets me everywhere—bonds—stocks—figures—dividends—coupons—deeds—

—it's too much!" he said suddenly, with resentment. "It's too much for me. Why, sometimes I feel a hundred years old, and like a hunk of gold."

Ruggles, in answer to this, said: "Why, that reminds me of what a man remarked about your father once. It was the same English chap your father bought the claim of. Speaking of Blair, he said to me: 'You know there's all kinds of metal bars, and when you cut into them some is bullion, and some's coated with aluminum, and there's others that when you cut down, cut a clean yellow all along the line.' "There's nothing to do," said Dan in a bored tone.

"Why don't you see who your telegram is from?" Ruggles asked. It proved to be a suggestion from Gordon Gaiety that Dan should meet him at five o'clock at the club.

"What will you do, Ruggles?"

"Sleep," said the Westerner serenely. "I'm nearly as happy in London as I am in Philadelphia. It's four o'clock now and I can't sleep more than four hours anyway. Let's have a real wild time, Danite."

Dan looked at him doubtfully, but Ruggles' eyes were keen.

"What kind of a time do you mean?"

"Let's ask the Gaiety girl for dinner—for supper after the theater."

"Letty Lane? She wouldn't go."

"Why not?"

"She is awfully delicate; it is all she can do to keep her contracts."

He knows that, Ruggles thought. "Let's ask her and see." He went over to the table and drew out the paper. "Come on and write and ask her to go out with us to supper."

"See here, Ruggles, what's this for?"

Dan was puzzled as he sat down to the table, reflecting that it was perfectly possible that old Ruggles had fallen a prey to the charms of an actress. She wouldn't come, of course. He wrote a formal invitation without thinking very much of what he said or how, folded and addressed his note, and wrote: "What do you say?" Ruggles asked eagerly.

"Why, that two boys from home wanted to give her a supper."

"Well, perhaps I better go now, your customer has been waiting quite a while."

"I do not," responded Dan rather brutally. "She's got others to take her out to supper, you bet your life."

"Well, there's none of them as rich as you are, I reckon, Dan."

And the boy turned on him violently.

"See here, Josh, if you speak to me again of my money, when there's a woman in the question—"

He did not finish his threat, but snatched up his coat and hat and gloves and went out of the door, slamming it after him.

Mr. Ruggles' profound and happy snore was cut short by the page boy, who fetched in a note, with the Savoy stamping on the back. Ruggles opened it but without emotion.

"Dear boy," it ran, "I haven't yet thanked you for the primroses; they were perfectly sweet. There is not one of them in any of my rooms, and I'll tell you why tonight. I am crazy to accept for supper—here she had evidently struck out her intended refusal, and closed with, 'I'm coming, but don't come after me at the Gaiety, please. I'll meet you at the Carlton after the theater. Who's the other boy? L. L.'"

The "other boy" read the note with much difficulty, for it was badly written. "He'll have to stop sending her flowers and going every night to the theater unless he wants a row with the duchess," he said dryly. And with a certain interest in his role, Ruggles rang for the head waiter, and with the man's help ordered his first midnight supper for an actress.

Ruggles, in answer to this, said: "Why, that reminds me of what a man remarked about your father once. It was the same English chap your father bought the claim of. Speaking of Blair, he said to me: 'You know there's all kinds of metal bars, and when you cut into them some is bullion, and some's coated with aluminum, and there's others that when you cut down, cut a clean yellow all along the line.' If, as you say, you feel like a hunk of metal, it ain't bad if it's that kind."

"It's got to stop coming in between me and the woman I marry, all right, though." Dan did not pursue his subject further, for his feelings about the duchess were too unreal to give him the sincere heartiness with which he would have liked to answer Ruggles.

He went over to the window, and with his hands in his pockets, stood looking out at the fog. Ruggles, at the table, opened the cover of the book of "Mandulay" and took out the four checks made out to Lady Gaiety and which he had forgotten. He hurriedly thrust them into his pocket.

"Come away, Danite," he said cheerfully, "let's do something wild. I feel up to do most anything with this miserable fog down on me. If it had any nerve it would take some form or shape, so a man could choke it back."

Ruggles blew his nose violently.

"There's nothing to do," said Dan in a bored tone.
